GRAYLING, MICHIGAN, OCTOBER 4, 1928

OSCAR P. SCHUMANN, Editor and Proprietor

NUMBER 40

CIRCUIT COURT NEXT WEEK

The October term of Circuit Court will convene next Tuesday at the Court House with Judge Guy E. Smith presiding. Judge Smith will meet with a small calendar this term as there are only eight cases to be disposed of. No doubt it will be a short session.

Following are the cases:

Criminal

The people vs. Robert Alexander, violation of the prohibition law.

The people vs. Carl Thurston, violation of the prohibition law.

The people vs. Fred Sawyer, violation of the prohibition law.

Jury Civil Cases

Hazen Keene vs. Theodore Callihan and Joseph Belski, trespass on the case.

John Malco vs. Charles H. Marker, trespass on the case.

Chancery Cases

The American State Bank vs. James E. Kellogg, foreclosure.

Lena M. Clothier vs. Ernest E. Clothier, divorce.

Louis Savage vs. Augusta Clansay and Charles A. Worst, foreclosure.

The list of petit jurors drawn for this term are as follows:

George Wolf, Beaver Creek.

Jay Odell, Frederic.

E. G. Shaw, Grayling.

Charley Miller, Lovells.

Jay Skinner, Maple Forest.

Alvin M. Scott, South Branch.

ENJOYED NATIONAL LEAGUE CONVENTION

Our party of five left Grayling on Monday, Sept. 24th, to attend the 27th annual convention of the Ladies' National League which was held at Saginaw on Sept. 25th and 26th in Bancroft Hotel.

Mrs. Fern Feldhauser (who, let me say, drove her Whipper in a very able manner), Mrs. Pankow, our President, Mrs. Emma Knibbs, Mrs. Carrie Feldhauser (our chaperone) and Mrs. Florence Wakeley, our delegate, comprised the party. Mrs. Williams, National Picket, went by train.

Word of personal greeting from Governor Green to the Ladies' National League by Attorney General Brooker of Michigan who is a member of the National League of Sons of Veterans.

Camp Wagner No. 10 of Grayling was honored when Mrs. Bertha Williams a member of our camp was elected 2nd Vice President of the National Camp.

There was a large delegation of 63 voting members and nearly two hundred guests.

Camp Sherman No. 1 of Saginaw gave us a bus ride around Saginaw with an announcer to tell us of the many interesting things. Among them the General Motors buildings and the new dock they are putting in, intending to bring nearly all the material they use by boat. Some fine parks and other things too numerous to mention.

We met Mrs. J. A. Holliday of Detroit, one of our former residents and a Past President of our League, who is now on the Executive Board. There was some fine degree work.

We had plenty of fun and a fine experience at the camp, and going and returning home.

Call For Debaters!

Mr. Hill, public speaking instructor, issued a call last Friday for candidates for a debating team. In an enthusiastic speech delivered to the high school, he stated the important facts concerning the art of debating. He also said that if the efforts to form a debating team at Grayling High are successful, trips are to be made to other schools to test our debating skill. We hope to compete in the state finals at Ann Arbor when the time arrives.

So come on, students, don't hold back! Try your skill at debating and let's see what a competitive debating team Grayling can produce! You're all good "arguers," at least, so show your stuff in a few good arguments for the team. Perhaps we may come out on top in the finals! Who knows?

Basket Ball

Prospects look bright for a winning team this year. Twenty-six men reported for practice when the call was issued, and at least twenty have reported at every practice. Among these are five former men of last year: Brady, Wylie (Capt), Fenton, Stinchcomb, and Neal. Coach Cushman expects to put two teams in the field which are sure to supply the public with plenty of entertainment for this season.

New Fire Escape

The high school is equipped with a new fire escape which leads from the back of the assembly room and will empty the assembly room much quicker than the old way of marching down three flights of stairs. The fire escape is a tubular affair with trap doors at the top.

Monday noon Mr. Cushman gave the pupils the privilege of trying it out. When going down it, you experience the thrills of a chute-the chute of a modern carnival plus the fun of landing in the dirt at the bottom. Some of the more timid ones were afraid to try it, but we know they will have to in a real fire drill anyway. Those who have already tried it are anxiously waiting a fire drill. Lots of fun!

The Old Reliable orchestra is playing for the student dance tomorrow night. We hope the floor will be filled most of the time. The orchestra has been practicing all this week and hopes to make the music satisfactory to all.

The girls' Basketball team has started practicing. We have a fast team so watch out, opponents. A Student's Soliloquy

Well, there, my geometry is all done and so is my history. Now I have time to sit here and enjoy the fire for a few minutes before I go to bed. Wonder what I got in my English exam, hope it isn't anything lower than ninety and I'd like to make out as good as a "B" average. I've had a hard time keeping up with him, he's like a whirlwind once he's started. I can't believe he's the same boy. Now last year he didn't have the least bit of interest in school and it showed on his report card. Now it doesn't seem as tho he's the same boy.

It's going to be a wonderful year, though, and the students are showing so much interest and High School spirit, that we just can't fail.

We fellows will have to pep up—can't afford to let the girls get ahead of us—but then we're all of the same school and the more victories only add to the glories of dear old G. H. S.

Ho hum! the fire has burned low and it's time to go to bed—got to be in at 8 to be ready for tomorrow.

The Classes (as seen by a Senior)

Once when walking through the halls. These strange sights did meet my eye.

(It depends which class you are in Whether you will laugh or cry.)

First I saw the Seventh Grade Who had no desire to learn, They just sat making faces

While for recess they did yearn

I went into the Eighth Grade room, What I saw there made me stare; Books and pencils and papers Were seen sailing through the air.

The poor teacher tried to stop them But her view they could not see, And I hastened front the battle When they threw a book at me.

When I visited the Freshmen They sat there so very small, That I wondered what they would do, When they came out to play ball.

But they very quickly showed me, I lay sprawled upon the floor, For you see, the second bell rang And I was standing near the door.

Then I visited the Sophomores, They would sigh and sigh some more, Just as if they'd like to utter, "Oh, but life is such a bore."

Suddenly that bored look vanished, Gone for good that look of sorrow, For they heard the teacher say, "No assignment for tomorrow."

Now the Junior class I entered, They though Juniors, so supreme, But I really must confess it, What I saw there was a scream.

They sat with jaws all gaping Hearing poems of love and tears, But their vacant, staring glances Told of naught above the ears.

Then I stole in on the Seniors, Who came last, although not least, The erstwhile ruler of this school room I did my eyes upon them feast.

Listening to Mr. Bogue's wisdom, Steeped in knowledge, they're so wise That the very brightest of them, Seemed to really hurt my eyes.

Later, when I long had pondered, I at last made this confession That the class of '29 Is the best without exception.

A Plea For Our Teachers

In the midst of all this agitation concerning the blue laws, it is surprising how little is said in defense of the school teachers, and how right as an American citizen to live her own life. In a number of communities the Public School teachers do not dare to call their souls their own, in school or outside. If she dresses too youthfully, if she has too many dates, if she walks home with a male member of the faculty, if she goes out too much, or in short, if her social conduct is at all out of the ordinary, she is subject to censure and dismissed at the expiring of her contract.

It seems to me that school boards in some places are trying their best to make our teachers inhuman, and for what end? She too is a human being like you or I. What you, she wishes to enter into a vocation which hampers her personal freedom? How blind those school boards are not to see and realize that a standardized teacher would be a bore to her pupils.

We, the pupils of Grayling High School demand a human, a living, living teacher, not a mechanical machine who doesn't call her name her own; and we are proud that the broad minded men of the school board in the city of Grayling place no such bars on our teachers.

Outlook bright for a good Basketball team.

Coach Cushman put his proteges through the first two practices on Monday and Wednesday nights in the hope of finding some prospects for his basketball squad. With a number of his last year's squad out, he is making rapid progress in practices. In the scrimmages there were many bright lights, and some mistakes were made, but on the whole, for the first time, the basketball team looked good."

Pauline Schoonover, a Senior of 92, visited school last Thursday. Also

Norman and Lacey—Stephan, graduates of two years ago visited school Friday afternoon.

The Juniors and Seniors are preparing for the party which will be given next Friday. This is going to be something worth while and each person should begin the year right by being in attendance.

The French class is progressing rapidly and each student is already capable of counting to five in French. Mr. Cushman's plane Geometry class is ready to start the third proposition. Each proposition is accompanied by several problems so the propositions won't get lone one.

Grade Notes

We have named our rows avenues, and we are trying to own gold stars for our avenues by keeping them clean and quiet.

Our teacher read us the story of the Little Black and White Lamb. We liked it very much, so today we made a little book like it. We colored the cover and a picture in the book. We told our teacher what to write on the front for the story, then we copied it in our books.

3rd Grade

Twelve boys and girls were absent from our room Friday.

Phyllis Parker and Jerome Peterson are out of school on account of the measles. We hope to have them with us again soon.

DON'T HUNT DUCKS AFTER 2 P. M. AT HOUGHTON LAKE

Lansing, Oct. 1.—By means of placards which have been posted in conspicuous places all around the adjacent territory, parties living on or near Houghton Lake have advised the fact that they are not in favor of shooting ducks on this great marshy lake.

Each day, the residents believe that if hunters leave the ducks alone in the afternoon that it will result in more ducks. With all the guns silenced for a certain period each day, the water fowl will have a chance to gain much needed rest and food.

Parties at the lake who have made a business of towing shooting parties out to the weed beds frequented by the ducks have agreed that all crafts used in this enterprise will leave the grounds at 2 o'clock and tow all their boats with them. Inasmuch as there are comparatively few private parties on the grounds, this decision means that the birds will be greatly benefited.

At 7:30 p. m. the theme "Prayer for Saints as well as Sinners" Don't forget this most appropriate service of the day. It will strengthen you for the tasks that lie ahead.

The Uncommon Commonplace

The title is Quail's but the thought is applicable in many ways. How often we use the most commonplace of words or groups of words, and because we use them so often, we lose sight of their meaning.

In a recent translation of the Bible the first word of the first chapter of "Hail" has been translated "Good Morning." How suggestive, suggestive, suggestive! It was the first full dawn that ever rose on a human life. For the grave of Jesus was the birthplace of the industry, the time when death is conquered, and that there is life ETERNAL.

It was Good Morning for the high and low, for the extremes in estate and education. Sir James Simpson, the great scientist, carved on the tomb of his little daughter "Nevertheless I live," and the negro spiritual shows the faith of those humble slaves.

We have heard their songs putting the question "Who will be alive when I am dead?" and the answer comes back—

"Trees will be a living and a way when I am dead."

Birds will be a living and a singing when I am dead."

But the song closes with a great shout—

"Who will be a living when I am dead?"

I will! I will! Good morning hereafter with new meaning.

HAPPY HOMES VS. ?

Our purpose is to build in this nation a human society, not an economic system. We wish to increase the efficiency and productivity of our country, but its final purpose is happier homes." Herbert Hoover.

Compare the above words of Herbert Hoover with the wet principles of Al Smith. Does anyone believe that the repeal of the 18th amendment as advocated by Smith, can add any happiness to the masses of American homes?

We are often referred to liquor controlled Canada. May we call attention of Avalanche readers to the following:

"Ontario is buying liquor at the rate of one million dollars a WEEK."
"In Alberta 4,000,000 gallons of liquor were sold in the second year of control."

"Sales of beer INCREASED 1,000,000 gallons over last year."
"The seven provinces having Government Control," with a population of 10,000,000 spend $160,000,000 a year for liquor."

"Alberta issued 50,000 permits the first year; two years later she issued 144,000 permits."
"In Ontario 220,440 permits were issued in the first four months."

"Drunkennes among women has increased 50%."
"Bootlegging INCREASED 11% the first year."

Here is a partial record of "Law Enforcement Controlled" Canada. The authority for the above figures can be furnished upon application.

Can those conditions bring about happy homes? Or would it be better that the fabulous sums mentioned above be spent for family needs—for the wives and children?

We believe the prohibition conditions in America are not what they should be, but would the principles as advocated by Al Smith make them better? The answer must be determined by the voter himself.

A lot of fellows seem only to live from one week-end to another.

Nowadays if a campaign orator makes a statement on which he can later be questioned, he can blame the mis-statement on the static.

Many an old-fashioned girl who insisted on having a church wedding, now has a daughter insisting on adding a shik to the family liability through a companionate alliance.

The old-fashioned hired man, back in time to help with the Sunday evening chores, has been succeeded by a mainly attired farm hand who motors in on Monday morning with a wicker bag about having been detained by a bad week.

We wonder just how far the outbreak of measles would have spread had we had a nurse on the job in school. One pupil came down with the disease and since then several who had seats nearby also got the disease. It is claimed that the youngsters appeared to be getting the disease from the nurse and if there was anything serious the matter with them they were sent home or to a doctor.

Mr. Stevenson lived in Grayling thirty years ago and was employed in the Salling Hanson Company general store. Later he went to Johannesburg to operate a drug store for the same firm, buying them out. He is now retired from active business.

Charles Robert Tiffin, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tiffin was badly burned yesterday forenoon. The little boy stays with his grandmother Mrs. Dolph Sancier while his mother is away at her work at the Grayling Manufacturing company and it is thought he got hold of some matches in some way. However, when his grandmother saw him his clothing was in flames. She rolled him on the ground and in trying to extinguish the flames she received some bad burns on her hands that had to be dressed. The little boy is in quite a serious condition at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Niederer and daughter Helen and Mrs. Alfred Hanson visited the Charles Ewalt family in Mackinaw City Sunday.

There will be a regular meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion at the hall next Tuesday evening, October 9th.

Mrs. Charles Tromble entertained ten guests at dinner Tuesday evening. The evening was spent playing bridge. Mrs. Olaf Mickelson was high lady.

The regular meeting of the Ladies Aid society will be held at the home of Mrs. George McCullough, Friday, October 5th. A large attendance is desired.

There will be the regular dance at the Beaver Creek town hall next Saturday night. Our new music is drawing big crowds. Come and have a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brown spent the week end in Detroit. On their return the latter stopped in Bay City where she is serving on the grand jury in Federal court.

Charles Tiffin is in the city called here from the Soo owing to the serious condition of his little grandson, Charles Tiffin who was badly burned yesterday forenoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hanselman who have been residing in Lewistown the past year and a half, have moved back to their home in Grayling. Mr. Hanselman had been working on a farm at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Herbison enjoyed having as their guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Beaufort Herbison of Bath and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fletcher of Flint. The party was enroute home from a pleasure trip in the north.

Instead of the usual Forty Hour devotion, this year, St. Mary's church will have adoration of the blessed sacrament one day only, on Sunday, October 14. It will begin at the 8:00 o'clock mass and close with the evening service.

The activity in real estate in Grayling is a good, healthy sign. And farm lands too are coming in for their share of boom. High city wages don't offset the high cost of living, and last time so the tendency everywhere is "back to the farm."

Washings Wanted—By a brand new washing machine, call your electric light office for a home trial, you are placed under no obligation what-so-ever.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Alexander were hosts at a delightful dinner party at the home of Mrs. Alexander. The party was enjoyed later at the Alexander home. Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Mickelson and Mrs. J. E. Schoonover were also present. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. M. Hanson, Fred Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Mickelson, and Mrs. C. G. Clippert.

Burke's Garage is surely a neat looking place and Nyland Houghton and George Schroeder are the ones responsible for its good looks. Anytime you go there if they aren't waiting on trade or doing some other clerical duty they're busy shining up the place. Mr. Burke has made a big improvement to his workshop, by having the ceiling and walls painted white. The workshop is located in the basement of the building and the white walls and ceiling give a better lighting effect and the place looks so clean and inviting.

At a special meeting of the local council of Knights of Columbus Wednesday evening of last week, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: W. J. Nadeau was elected to succeed himself as grand knight; the others are Arnold Burrows, deputy grand knight; W. J. Herie, financial secretary; Louis Kessler, treasurer; Joseph Cassidy, chancellor; Alex LaGrow, warden. There was a good attendance at the meeting.

At the scheduled meeting with representatives of the State Tax Commission, Supervisor Tony Nelson gave a resume of the facts upon which he based his opinion for placing the valuation upon the local property of the Standard Oil Co. His figures called for a valuation of $10,000. Attorneys for the Company explained how their business had suffered a large slump in earnings. In the year 1924 the earnings of the Company in round numbers was about 66 million dollars. Last year the earnings dropped to about 33 millions. The state commissioners considered the information offered and reported a decrease in the valuation of $1,000, making the final figures $9,000. Mr. Nelson said he was not satisfied with the decision but from their verdict once formally pronounced there is no appeal.

TEACHERS MEET AGAIN IN GRAYLING HIGH

Quite a number of teachers from Crawford County and a few from Roscommon County convened Saturday, September 29th in the Grayling high school building for the purpose of organizing an Extension class to earn credits leading to a life certificate and B. A. degree. Prof. H. V. Wilbur from Michigan State Teachers' College was present and gave a very interesting talk leading up to the organization of a class. The class will meet again for the purpose of beginning work Saturday, October 13th in the Assembly room of Grayling High and we expect that at least twenty-two, our quota, will be present with "oodles and oodles" of enthusiasm in the new prospect of our teachers to prepare themselves in the modern field of teaching.

To join this happy group, it is only necessary to advise with Principal Cushman or Commissioner Payne. The cost of these two courses extending over a period of twelve weeks is only twenty-five dollars; and it is easy to calculate the saving when we consider that the cost in residence at any of our normal schools is more than one hundred dollars.

We owe it to ourselves and to the profession to take advantage of this movement and to join the Extension class.

The date is October 13, 1928.

The place is the Assembly room of Grayling High.

The time is 9 a. m., Central Standard.

John W. Payne, Commissioner of Schools.

Special campaign during October ONLY. During this month we can arrange to deliver a washer to your home—and if you decide to keep it after a trial you may pay for it in twelve months, with the initial payment of ONLY $5.00. This is a very limited offer.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

New Plating Process

Although it has long been possible to use most metals—such as gold, silver, nickel, etc.—for plating purposes, it was not until this year that a process for plating aluminum was perfected. Aluminum is the most resistant of all metals to chemical and natural corrosion; therefore this new discovery is very important to industry. The process was perfected by University of Illinois chemists. (C. by Western Newspaper Union.)

LOW AIM

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

WE WERE visiting Fortress Monmouth, N. J., and were using a slide about by the officers. I had never seen anything of that sort and I was interested in all the details and calculations incident to accurate marksmanship.

"Would you like to see the target practice?" the officer asked me. "We are going out this morning and I should be glad to have you accompany me."

It was a new experience to me, and I accepted his invitation eagerly. I had never thought much about the details of aiming and firing one of these huge guns. Without considering the matter I had taken for granted that one aimed directly at what one expected to hit. I did not stop to consider that gravity pulled the shell down as it was hurled on its way, and that one must aim high if he is to hit even a low object at a distance. It seemed to me as I watched the marks of the great gun pointing into the air that the marksman was shooting into the clouds instead of aiming at the target a few feet above the surface far out in the ocean. I began more intelligently to appreciate what the post meant when he said: "What a failure—but this is crime."

If one would hit an object at any distance away he must aim above it, for the gravity drags the bullet down. It is equally true of other sorts of endeavor in life; we fall very often from aiming too low.

Kent was dropped from college last year because of poor scholarship. He had meant to pass his work, but he had no ambition to do well. The last thing he wished to be was an "honorary man." It seemed to him a foolish waste of time to do better than the average, and feeling so he aimed low, and missed the mark, falling in most of his work.

Father and mother were very much grieved and Kent himself was humiliated and begged to be given another chance. He seemed like a man newly converted and the dean tried him again. He was readmitted on condition that at least three-fourths of his work should be passed with a grade of C. Now C is far below the average of college, so that the mark at which Kent was to aim was not a very remote one, and not very hard to hit.

I had a letter from his father today. The boy has failed again. He had fully intended to get no grade below C, but the trouble was that he had had no intention of making a grade of B. C was the mark at which his artillery was directed and he aimed too low. He failed one course and barely passed another and the second chance for which he had begged was lost.

"It seems too bad," his father wrote, "that he should have lost his opportunity by so slight a margin."

It does indeed, but Kent's failure illustrates the failures of many men in business or in professional life. They are satisfied to be commonplace; they aim too low. (C. 1928, Western Newspaper Union.)

This Was a Real Radio Wedding

There was a genuine radio wedding at the Radio World's fair in New York, the happy couple being married by Dr. Clarence J. Harris, who read the service from a suite in the Hotel Astor. This photograph shows, left to right, the bride, groom, minister, radio queen of 1928 and maid of honor at the wedding, and Robert W. Phillips, groom, looking at their novel wedding cake. The cake was made around a radio set and loud speaker that actually works.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

Seek Solution For Household Problems

East Lansing, Oct. 2.—Thousands of Michigan farm women will be aided in the solution of household problems this year through home economics extension work which is being carried on by specialists from M. S. C. and sponsored by major "projects" in which help is to be given to home furnishing, home management, clothing, and nutrition. The groups which take these extension courses are organized under the direction of a local leader, each pound of butterfat produced in who attends leader training schools a week, once each month.

A three year course in home furnishing is given and two years of work is given in each of the other three projects. The home economics extension staff at the college which supervises the projects will have three new members this year: Miss Florence L. Becker, nutrition; Miss Clara L. Graves, clothing; and Miss Fritze Gilmore, home furnishing.

Miss Martha Mae Hunter and Miss Carrie C. Williams, members of last year's staff, have resigned. Miss Hunter is taking advanced training in nutrition and Miss Williams will spend a year at her home in Oregon.

Good Feed Secures Larger Milk Yield

East Lansing, Oct. 2.—Centuries of domestication have not basically changed the natural production characteristics of dairy cattle and it is necessary to furnish a substitute for pasture if maximum quantities of milk are to be secured in the fall and winter months. This fact has been the basis of the recommendation of the Michigan State College dairy department.

Corn is one of the best substitutes for pasture and should be fed at the rate of three pounds daily for each hundredweight of animal. This would make the daily ration about 30 pounds or more for most dairy cows.

Chopped beets or beet pulp may be used in place of silage if it is necessary to secure the latter. Some of the best feed and water combinations to maintain the milk yield of high producing cows.

Good legume hay furnishes protein on the farm and minerals which the dairy cow must have. Experiments have also shown that hay contains some undesirable quality that is absolutely essential to maintain the health of healthy animals.

"Lacked up" in narrow long piles packed full to sun and wind and exposed to rain. A woodshed is an excellent investment, particularly with a good one hanging out with an open or striped curtain all the way around a foot or two higher than the door to provide for ventilation.

Most of the garden part—beans, tomatoes, squashes, cut-overs—have finished their season's work. And now the time is coming when the gardener should "put his garden to bed" for the winter. One of the first things to be done is to clean up the vines, dead plants, weeds, and other refuse. Burn all refuse to destroy insects and diseases that have harassed the garden throughout the season, otherwise they will live over till next spring and go to work again. With insect pests such as the European corn borer and the Mexican bean beetle to fight, the gardener must clean up these pests will "clean him up." After the trash is cleaned up, and turned in as a good plan, in sections where weather conditions will permit, to sow winter oats, rye, or some other green crop.

Grain does not taste good unless it is well cooked, hence it is advisable to cook cereals until the starch is well cooked, but it is no longer considered necessary to cook them for several hours before they are given to children. Many of the pack- aged cereals now on the market have already been precooked so that some of them need only a very brief cooking in the double boiler.

PICTORIAL LIFE OF HERBERT HOOVER

No. 10 By Satterfield

1. After their romantic years in China the Hoovers settled down in America with their two boys.

2. During this period, Hoover made extensive contributions to the scientific literature of engineering.

3. His leisure time was spent in scientific experiment in his own private laboratory.

4. Camp life was his vacation hobby. He is the only man who can poach an egg on the end of a stick.

PICTORIAL LIFE OF HERBERT HOOVER

No. 11 By Satterfield

1. In Europe on an official mission in 1914, Hoover was alarmed at the international hatreds that he saw.

2. War came, with 200,000 Americans stranded in Europe. Hoover took the emergency job of helping them.

3. Then arose the call of the refugees. Hoover stepped into the breach to handle this relief operation.

4. The invasion of Belgium stirred his sympathy and imagination. He felt that fate had called him.

Concrete floors will reduce our costly fire bill

Popular sentiment is demanded that our modern houses, apartment houses, schools, theatres and office buildings be fire safe throughout. To be thoroughly safe a building should have concrete floors instead of the hard wood, linoleum, carpeting or tile covering. If we demand fire safe construction in our houses or buildings we should also demand it in our homes.

A fire starting in a residence fires start in the living room. Concrete first floors will prevent them from spreading to the upper rooms. In addition, concrete floors prevent structural sagging and other cracking.

May we tell you about them?

Grayling, October 5, 1905

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Annis of Beaver Creek are enjoying a visit from their cousin, Miss Maggie Luce, of Jackson County.

D. Raymond of Beaver Creek has got to build larger barns or let his hay stay out in the winter, and he is not sorry.

C. Strietmatt of Beaver Creek reports big crops, and no material damage from frost. Of course he looks pleased.

The water main on Michigan Avenue is being extended from Chestnut Street to Park Street, extending the fire protection.

McCullum Bros. have a very stylish house completed outside on the corner of Lake and Maple streets. It belongs to R. Hanson.

B. F. Sherman of Maple Forest was in town the last of the week with a big load of produce, happy over his bouncing crops, and escape from injury from frost.

The Foot Ball season will open here next Friday. Grayling vs. Cheboygan. Turn out and see a lively game. The boys will give a social dancing party at the opera house in the evening.

Burt Chapple returned from Dansville, Ingham County, Saturday where he had been to attend the funeral of his mother, who was 80 years of age. She had lived on the farm where she died, about sixty years.

Hubbards have completed the painting of R. Hanson's residence and it is called one of the best jobs in the town. It has certainly added greatly to the appearance of his already elegant home.

Archie Howse was in from his Maple Forest farm Saturday. He says his threshing machine has been running better than ever for five weeks and it is not through yet. Oats yield 40 to 65 bushels and wheat from 20 up.

A pumpkin pie social for the Gleasons was enjoyed by over seventy of the fraternity at the residence of Henry Moon in Beaver Creek, last week Wednesday evening. There was plenty of pie and more fun.

We learn that S. A. Robinson lost his sawmill and shingles one day last week by fire. It caught in the shavings where they were conveyed to the boiler room from the planer. Loss estimated at $10,000, without insurance, unless carried by outside parties.

T. M. Ockell of Beaver Creek had about three acres of millet on his

"worthless land", in sight of the Rosemary reserve, which averaged six feet in height and was a perfect swamp of foliage. There is a bundle of it in our office which shows.

O. B. Scott, of South Branch, thought it would pay to raise clover in Northern Michigan on the "worthless lands" in Crawford county and this season cut three and a quarter to see what it would do. It exceeded his most sanguine expectations, yielding 7 bushels to the acre. How is that for pine land.—Rosecom News.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Jones started for their new home in Washington last Thursday morning. They came to Grayling from Chesaning in 1877. Mr. Jones engaging as head sawyer with Jas. Goodale, who erected the first mill here, succeeded by Smithing Hanson & Co., in whose employ Mr. Jones remained for a number of years and was engaged in mercantile business, boots and shoes, for a couple of years. He has since served as postmaster, and has been the agent for the American Express Company for the past 9 years.

Professor Durant's pronouncement which started this brawl, reminds me of the familiar story of the cow Scotchman, all named Sandy, it seems that one of them was walking along the middle street of Glasgow without an umbrella in a driving rain storm. He was arrested by a bairn (policeman) and locked up in the kiltie (jail). He sent for his friend

"Weet, Sandy," said Sandy, "what be you all doin' in the kiltie?" "Ah be here for trookin' in de rain wi' no umbrella," said Sandy. "But, mon, they canna put ye in jail for dot!" remonstrated Sandy. "They canna, but they bae!" cried Sandy.

A man, says Doctor Durant, cannot fall in love after the age of thirty. All right, he can't. But does he? I will recount a case which recently came under my personal observation and leave the answer to the jury that tried Remus.

George Gadget was a junior at Grotton. It seemed kind of funny calling him a junior, because he was seventy-three years old. He had been a student at Grotton for fifty-nine years. He wasn't as dumb as this sounds; he was merely economical. Staying there saved him the expense of going back to reunions. And besides, his instructor in spelling, who was a great hockey fan and loved to see Grotton win, kept thinking him so he couldn't graduate and leave the school without a capitalistic gesture. Gadget had been gentle on the varsity team for half a century and during the last twenty years of this period, none of Grotton's opponents had been able to shut the buck through his lead for a goal.

Gadget had never gone with girls. He was looked on by his buddies as a misogynist. It was a great surprise to them, therefore, when he got up in reading class one morning and announced his engagement to Miss Hazel Tuffeta of Lansing, New Jersey.

Miss Tuffeta was an alumna of Heyn-Mayer where she had been a classmate of Jane Addams and Mrs. Whitte. She was now eighty-one and Dartmouth had just elected her Snow Queen of its winter carnival. In fulfillment of her duty in seeing that the snow was kept off the streets of college towns, she visited Grotton and met Gadget.

"Hello, girlie," said the latter. "Hello, geebie," said Miss Tuffeta. "I hear you are a misogynist."

"And I hear you are a confirmed spinster," returned Gadget. "Let's estimate," suggested Miss Tuffeta.

"The pair thus began to be acquainted, once in a spirit of raillery, but in less than a week their relations had lost all semblance of mere good fellowship and they were acting like two or more turtle doves. Gadget sent her candy, flowers, darning letters, new electric light bulbs, tooth paste and hair restorer. She sent him a patent beard hanger and spent an hour under his window every night trying to tune a guitar, but most of the while she just sat out in front of the Elks hotel and gazed, doing it so well that the school regents asked her to remain at Grotton as language teacher.

"Hello, girlie," said the latter. "Hello, geebie," said Miss Tuffeta. "I hear you are a misogynist."

HANDICAPS

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I have thought sometimes that may be the mountains which loomed up as a barrier before the eyes of the first settlers in this country were a challenge rather than a discouragement as they pushed their way westward first beyond the Alleghenies and then, as the challenge flung itself into their faces still more arrogantly, to the Pacific coast. The thought of conquering the heights stirred their blood, fired their curiosity and their pride. I have been sure at times that that at first sight seemed a physical or mental barrier to success has acted only as an incentive to greater effort on the part of the young person upon whom the handicap has been laid.

Four years ago I had a letter from a boy in a country town in southern Illinois. He was just graduating from high school and was hesitating about trying to go further with his education. A nervous disease had seemed to put up for him an almost insuperable barrier. He walked with difficulty; his speech was halting and sometimes almost unintelligible; and he was sensitive as to his physical deficiencies. "I had known another boy, much like him, however, who had overcome his handicaps and had done well as a free lance writer, and I said so."

But the boy a few weeks ago, he has graduated from a neighboring college, he has made honors for him, the handicap has proved only the challenge of the mountains which he has climbed.

A classmate of mine was almost blind. He could see objects only by getting his face close to them, yet he wanted to be a chemist. He went abroad if there was nothing the matter. He used to go about the laboratory with the utmost nonchalance, sticking his face down into the mixtures which were brewing. He seemed never to have an explosion; nothing ever went wrong as far as we knew. He came to ignore the handicap; he received the degree of doctor of science in chemistry from an eastern institution, and is today one of the well-known commercial chemists of the country. Most people would have said at once that the thing which he accomplished was quite an impossible thing.

I had a letter from Ellis a few days ago. He has been blind from birth, but he has managed, without money and sightless as he is, to graduate from college, and now he has come up for an advanced degree and is going to teach in a recognized college. He is as cheerful as if he had his eyesight. One of the men who graduated from our college of engineering two years ago had been stung deaf since childhood. All-instructing the boys was that he could pick up from reading the lips of his instructors. Yet he won honors in his engineering course; he was one of the most cheerful, happy boys whom I have ever known.

I sometimes think that a handicap is for many people a blessing in disguise.

ORDER MODIFYING AN ORDER ISSUED ON THE SIXTH DAY OF JULY, 1927, BY AUTHORITY OF ACT 230, P. A. 1925, MAKING A CLOSED SEASON ON MUSKRATS IN THE STATE UNTIL MARCH 1st, 1928.

CRAWFORD COUNTY ROAD COMMISSIONERS

An order was issued by the Conservation Commission on the sixth day of July, 1927, making it unlawful to trap, hunt, take, or kill, or attempt to trap, hunt, take, or kill any muskrats until the first day of March, 1928. It now appears that the order should be modified so as to permit the taking of muskrats during the season ending in the fall of 1928, and to continue the closed season on muskrats on and after March 1st, 1929.

Therefore, the Conservation Commission, by authority of Act 230, P. A. 1925, hereby orders that from November 15th, 1928, to December 15th, 1928, inclusive, it shall be lawful to trap muskrats; and further that it shall be unlawful to take, trap, hunt, or kill muskrats on and after January 1st, 1929, to November 15th, 1929, inclusive, under penalties provided by Section 5 of Act 230 of the Public Acts of 1925.

Signed, sealed, and ordered published this thirty-first day of July, 1928.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Bates arrived home Sunday from a two-weeks vacation spent in New York state, visiting relatives. Their time was largely spent at the homes of Mr. Bates' father, J. K. Bates, of Caughdenoy, N. Y., and Mrs. Thos. Washer, sister of Mrs. Bates, Pennellville, N. Y. There was apprehension on the part of some of Melvin's friends that he might return with strong Al-Smith sentiments, but he says NO! NO! NO! He stated that the campaign for the presidency in New York state is red hot but that Hoover's picture appears in nine out of every ten homes in the state outside of New York city. He didn't tell the latter place and couldn't tell so much about it. Mr. Bates says he feels certain that Hoover will carry New York state in the election.

Word has been received of the death of Eugene Foster who was found dead Tuesday morning in his newspaper office in Gladwin. For many years Mr. Foster had been the editor of the Gladwin Record, and was one of the best known newspaper men in Northern Michigan. He represented the 28th senatorial district in the State legislature of about 1910, and also served as a member of the last state constitutional convention. He was associated in the newspaper business with his brother, I. Foster. Mr. Foster, in his quiet, unassuming manner, gained a large circle of loyal friends in Northern Michigan, who feel in his passing away a distinct personal loss. He published a splendid newspaper, thru which he accomplished distinguished community service. He had been in poor health for several years past to which he was unable to recover.

Michigan Public Service Co. Mrs. Elma Hemmingson and daughter Doris left Wednesday morning for Seattle, Washington, where they will make their home with her sister Mrs. Lawrence Hedlund, who was formerly Miss Anna Nielsen.

Mrs. Hemmingson's health has been quite poorly the past year and she was given at the home of her father, Wilhelm Nielsen Sr. with the immediate members of the family present. They included Wilhelm Nielsen Jr. and family, Carl and Otto and Mrs. Fred Hanson.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kendrick of Hot Springs, South Dakota arrived in Grayling Sunday to look after interests in the Nellie E. Palmer estate. They made the trip by auto in about three days, doing much of their traveling by night. They left Tuesday afternoon, going via Detroit and Chicago. It may be interesting to learn that Mr. Kendrick says that his state will go for Hoover in the election. This has been classed as one of the doubtful states but Mr. Kendrick says that the sentiment for Hoover has grown very substantially. Wa-Wa-Sum club on the Ausable.

FRANCE LAUNCHES LARGEST DESTROYER

According to information received from the Navy Recruiting Station at Detroit, Michigan, France has launched a new destroyer, the "Verdun," which is said to be the largest of its kind in the world. It displaces 2,600 tons and is to have a speed of 37 knots an hour, driven by engines that will develop 70,000 horsepower. The "Verdun" is the first one launched of the six authorized in the 1920 program. France has just completed a 1,500 ton destroyer for Poland. It is one of three being built in France for the Polish Republic. England is also building three ships, flotilla leaders, for Argentina. The first of these, the "Mendoza," has been launched.

A Red Cross investigation disclosed more men injured in crossing the street than women. But men have so much more to distract their attention.

GOLF EXPLAINED IN HUMOROUS MANNER

UNIQUE EXPLANATION OF ANCIENT SPORT GIVEN

The following paragraphs were written by some unknown humorist and have been copied by many publications. Carl Mickelson brought a copy to the Avalanche office as it appeared in the Mason News. It is good anyway, although rather hard to take for some golf enthusiasts.

Golf is a form of work made expensive enough for a man to enjoy it. It is physical and mental exertion made attractive by the fact that you have to dress for it in a $200,000 clubhouse.

Golf is what letter-carrying, ditch-digging, and carpet-beating would be if those three tasks had to be performed on the same hot afternoon in short pants and colored socks by gouty-looking gentlemen who require a different implement for every mood.

Golf is the simplest looking game in the world when you decide to take it up, and the toughest after you have been at it ten or twelve years.

It is probably the only known game a man can play as long as a quarter of a century and then discover that it was too deep for him in the first place.

The game is played on carefully selected grass with little white balls and as many clubs as the player can afford. These little balls cost from 75c to $2.50, and it is possible to support a family of ten people (all adults) for five months on the money represented by the balls lost by some golfers in a single afternoon.

A golf course has eighteen holes, seventeen of which are unnecessary and put in to make the game harder.

A "hole" is a tin cup in the center of a "green," a "green" is a small patch of grass, costing about $1.00 a blade and usually located between a brook and a couple of trees, or a lot of "unfenced excavation."

The idea is to get the golf ball from a given point into each of the eighteen cups in the fewest strokes and the greatest number of words.

The ball must not be thrown, pushed or carried. It must be propelled by about $200.00 worth of curious looking implements, especially designed to provoke the owner.

Each implement has a specific purpose and ultimately some golfers get to know what that purpose is. They are the exceptions.

After each hole has been completed the golfer counts his strokes. Then he subtracts six and says, "Made that in five. That's one above par. Shall we play for fifty cents on the next hole, too, Ed?"

After the final, or eighteenth hole, the golfer adds up his score and stops when he has reached eighty-seven.

He then has a swim, a pint of lemonade and is to have a speed of 37 knots an hour, driven by engines that will develop 70,000 horsepower. The "Verdun" is the first one launched of the six authorized in the 1920 program.

France has just completed a 1,500 ton destroyer for Poland. It is one of three being built in France for the Polish Republic. England is also building three ships, flotilla leaders, for Argentina. The first of these, the "Mendoza," has been launched.

NAVY TO BE INCREASED

According to a report from the Navy Recruiting Station at Detroit, Michigan, the Navy will increase the enlisted personnel to 100,000 men by July 1st, 1931, against the present complement of 82,350 men. This increase will be necessary in order to man the new cruisers. A marked shortage has been felt throughout the service since the commissioning of the new aircraft carriers, the combined crews of which, including aviation personnel, aggregate about 4,000 officers and enlisted men. The increase in officer personnel is figured to be 825. This increase will bring the Navy of the United States to a parity with that of Great Britain, the personnel of which is given as 96,000 enlisted men, exclusive of naval men serving with the royal flying corps.

"ISLE ROYALES" NATURAL BEAUTIES CANNOT BE IMAGINED

Those are the words of Walter Hastings, official wild life photographer of the department of conservation, who has just returned from a trip to Michigan's northern paradise. Mr. Hastings has been on the island since last fall, but never, until last summer, was he able to see so much of its virgin forests and lakes in whose waters few paddles, if any, have ever dipped. His accounts of the wonders sound like fairy tales, but anyone who has ever met Hastings knows that he is a conservative individual who carries his proof, in the form of pictures, along with him.

"Imagine, if you can, a great forest in which there grow nothing but white birch," Hastings remarked. "I stumbled upon this unusual forest on one of my trips. The white birch ruled supreme. There was not another species of tree to be found with in its confines. Some of the birches were 21 inches in diameter. Moss and matricaria berry constituted the only undergrowth."

"Some idea of the fishing that exists on the island may be gathered from one of my experiences. We were crossing Siskawit Lake, one of the several large lakes. We were using one of the two boats on the lake and as we started on our voyage, I noticed that a large trolling line and spread had been left by some former angler."

"I stepped on the line and expressed my intention of catching some fish for dinner. I did not have any success on the way across, much to the amusement of the other members of the party."

"When we started the return trip, I again threw the line out. It had gone only about six feet when I had a strike. I pulled in a beautiful pike weighing 10 pounds. Again I started to let out my line and once more it was taken. This fish, another pike, was a trifle smaller."

"But the real catch was still to be made. I had nearly enough fish for our rather large party, but I thought I had better make some allowance for the ravenous appetites that are aroused in that country. So I tossed the line overboard again. The ensuing strike almost pulled me off my feet. I thought that I had hooked the daddy of all fish. Of course the trolling line was a stout one and I hauled the battler in gradually, hand over hand. Eyes popped out when they saw suspended from the hooks a six pound speckled trout."

CONCENTRATION OF EFFORT NECESSARY FOR PERSONAL PROGRESS

(By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.)

We hear the statement made now and then that such and such a man has a "one-track mind." Whether such a characterization is intended as criticism or compliment, the fact remains that the power of concentration is a valuable possession.

Nothing worth while was ever accomplished without concentrated effort. This rule applies with special force in the administration of one's personal affairs. Those who scatter their efforts and give their time to all sorts of activities and enterprises are not apt to gain satisfactory results.

Observation in any community will show that those who are succeeding best in life are to a great extent men of single purpose. A study of the careers of the successful men of this testimony to the same truth.

This does not mean that there is any virtue in gliding through life in a row attitude toward life. Successful men keep themselves in a receptive mood to changing conditions in order that they may not get out of step with the marching feet of progress.

But it is lack of this "single-track" waste of time, effort, opportunity and money—not to have one outstanding purpose, plan in life and bend every effort toward it. It is rather better to do one thing well than to do many things poorly. It requires willpower and strength of character to stick to a given purpose. It is the weakness—the potential failure—who follows over the line of least resistance, enthusing over one project today and casting it aside for another tomorrow.

Of all the elements that constitute thrift, concentration is one of the most useful and necessary.

REMARKABLE OIL RECORD

According to the United States Department of Labor, gasoline was the cheapest commodity in general use last year. During 1921, as compared with 1913, the price of gasoline was but 11.4 per cent higher, while such items as house furnishings advanced 123.8 per cent, coal 100 per cent and meat 50 per cent.

The oil industry has made a remarkable record in meeting a tremendous, growing demand for its products with a steady, low priced supply. It has been able to do this by epochal progress in the matters of drilling, refining and marketing.

There is hardly a single element necessary to the production of oil that has not been appreciably improved in the past years.

The result has been economy and efficiency in public service that is outstanding even in this age of industrial miracles.

One disadvantage of the talking picture is that it makes it harder to sleep through a bum show.

WHAT IS WRITTEN IS THE LAW

By Erwin Greer (President Greer School of Electrical and Automotive Trades, Chicago, Ill.)

Of course you know that ignorance of the law is not accepted as an excuse for violating the law. It is your business to know the automobile code of your State and the municipal ordinances of your city. Not only that, but you are supposed to know the laws and ordinances of any State or city through which you may be driving.

Did you ever consider what the law says about the rights of pedestrians on the highway? Don't take it for granted that you have all the right of way and that it is up to the pedestrian to hop when you blow. You need only to bump into one such pedestrian to discover that he has a whole book of rights that you are bound to observe, and that you play it safe only when you make sure the pedestrian sees or hears you. This is not merely courtesy. It is the law.

It often is thought that the noise of the motor is a sufficient warning to meet a vehicle, or passing it on the left when you overtake it, comprise a sort of unwritten law. Look in the law.

It is written, not unwritten. The law tells you where you belong on the road and where you stand if anything happens because you got into the wrong place.

Don't take chances by allowing members of the family too young by law to drive the car without being accompanied by a qualified adult. Don't allow guests or friends to take a chance. Investigate what your State law says and also what your insurance policy covers before letting anyone but yourself get behind the steering wheel. Don't violate the law or take chances just to be accommodating.

The wise motorist will write to the Secretary of State in any outside State in which he is to travel for a copy of that State's motor vehicle laws and familiarize himself with their important features, but first of all, he will get a copy of the law for his home State and find out what provisions are contained in that law which are not familiar to him. The best preventive of trouble is observance of the letter of the law, and the first step in this direction is to read the law.

The little trouble you save by that neglect will be of small account when compared with the trouble brought on by your neglect.

One disadvantage of the talking picture is that it makes it harder to sleep through a bum show.

ARE YOU A MOTOR VIGILANTE?

By Erwin Greer (President Greer School of Electrical and Automotive Trades, Chicago, Ill.)

Hardly a day passes but that the headlines of our newspapers scream of lives sacrificed on the altars of Carelessness and Thoughtlessness. Hardly a day passes but that scores of editorial writers dip their pen into the caustic ink and urge new reforms. And hardly a day passes but that often over-zealous, yet conscientious, aldermen or councilmen present to their fellow legislators increasingly stringent and awe-inspiring ordinances designed to protect the lives not only of pedestrians but of motorists as well.

Nothing—no psychological test or character analysis—will reveal true inwardness more quickly and with greater certainty than the automobile. And how it shows up the roamer in his inconsiderate, enthroned behind the steering wheel and feeling an eager engine beneath his feet because imbued with speed, poisoned with the mania of haste, stripped of the thin veneer of everyday courtesy and civilized conduct.

Think it over. How often have you observed the outrageous behavior of a driver, which made you say, "Somebody ought to report that fellow to the law."—that should not be permitted to drive a car. But you didn't report him. We do not like the idea of playing the part of the informer—and so the driver goes on making the highway unsafe not only for pedestrians but also for motorists.

Are we, the 95 per cent of sane and safe motorists, going to see to it, ourselves, that a curb is put on the 5 per cent, so that we may remain in the enjoyment of what are present our rights and privileges? Or do we want to wait until outside influences step in and punish us, the innocent, together with the guilty?

In the early days of this country's history, when it became necessary to rid the community of undesirable elements, vigilantes saw to it that justice was sure and swift. The days of force have been superseded by an era of organized security in which the individual surrenders the lash of punishment to properly constituted authority.

Thus, what we need now is a body of modern vigilantes comprising the 95 per cent of decent, law-abiding, careful drivers, to work through suitable laws, through persuasion and example, through reports, through volunteered testimony and in other ways toward the elimination of the unit.

If we fail to do these things, somebody will soon do them for us and our motoring freedom will be over. Let's do it ourselves.
